

Houndmail has a new look!

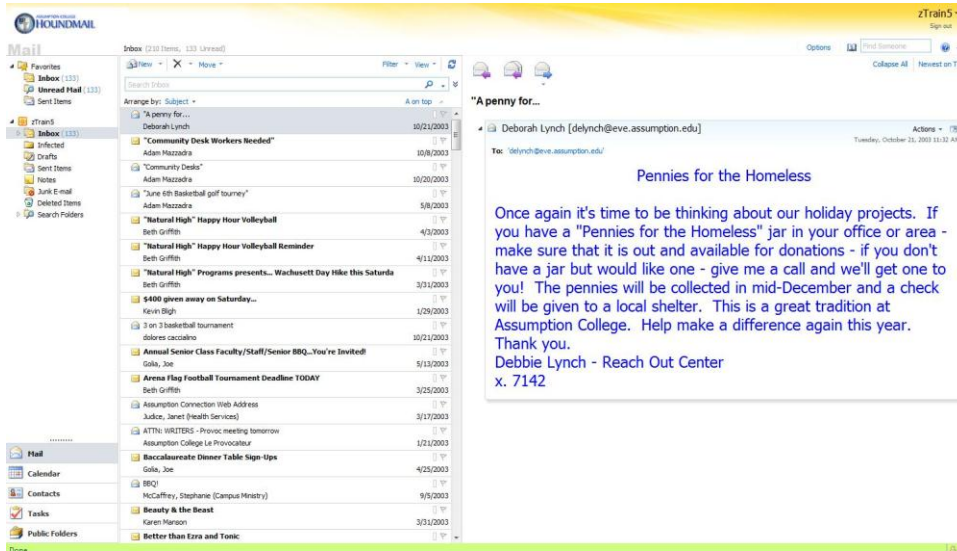

When you log in to the program, the login screen looks like this:

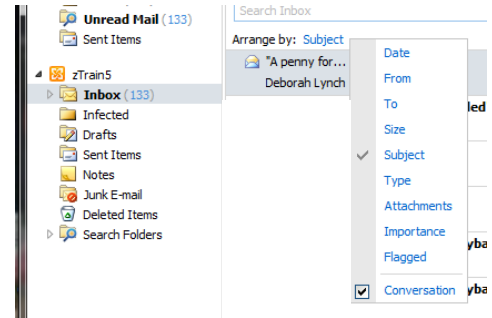

This is the main screen once you are logged in. This view has the reading pane on - you can also choose to just see the messages by clicking on the view tab and turn the reading off.

It is much easier to organize your messages in this version of OWA. You can just click on the messages and drag them to your folders (previously you had to select the message, choose the folders icon and open the folder and select the Move to icon).

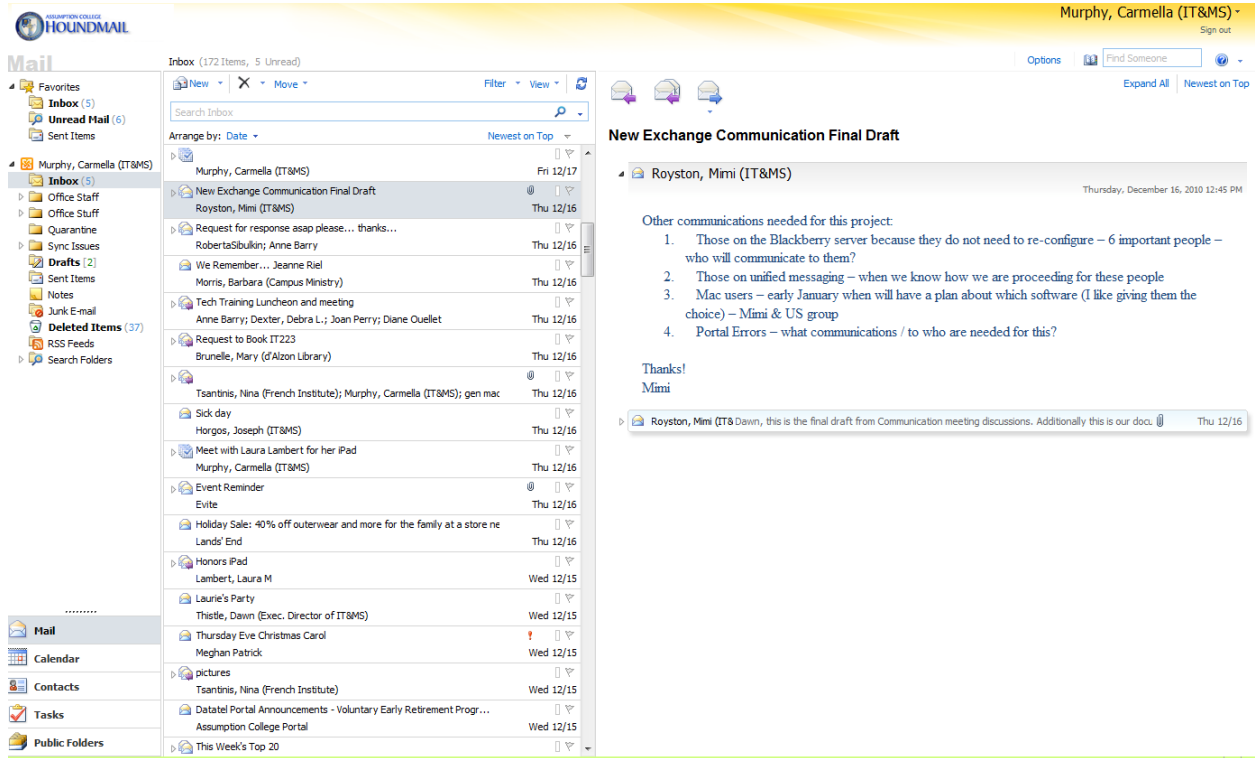

You can choose how you want to view your messages by looking in the drop down menu next to Arrange by:

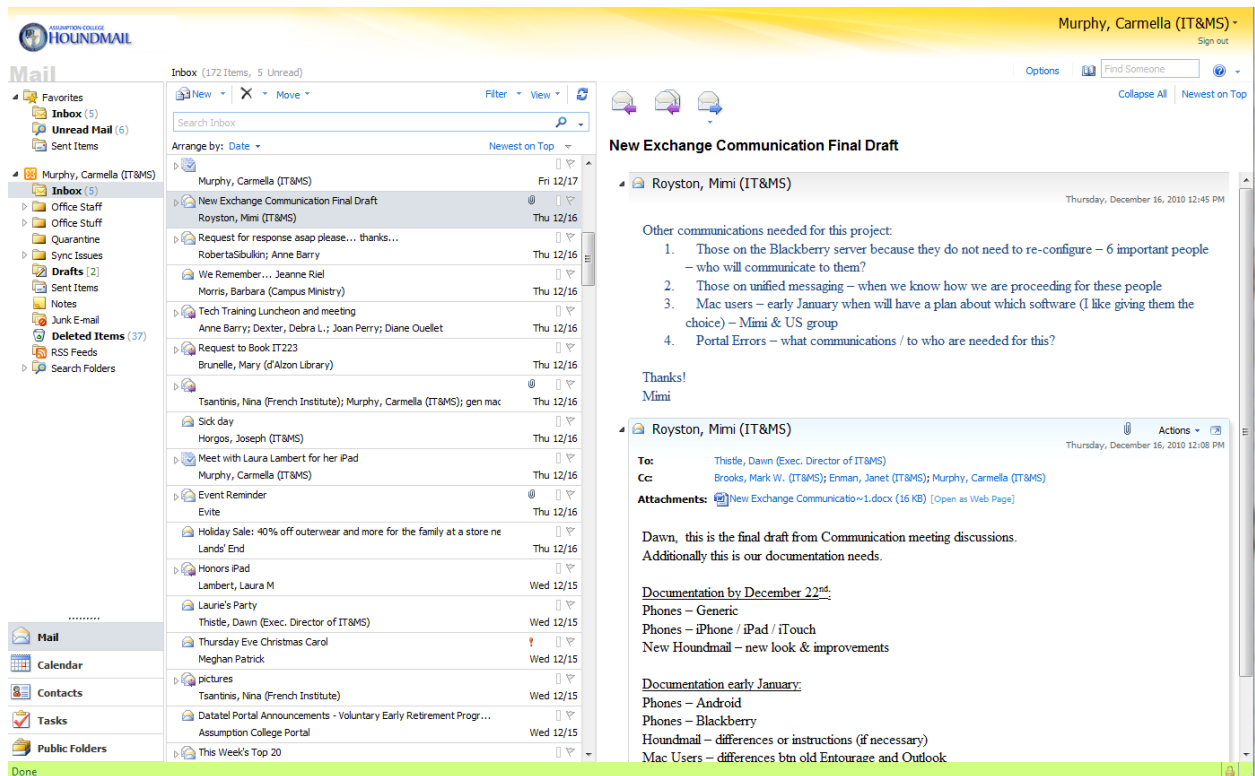

If you want to delete a bunch of messages, you can now click on the first one, shift click on the next one and then delete all.

Messages are now threaded. Note in the message below, I received 2 messages from Mimi.

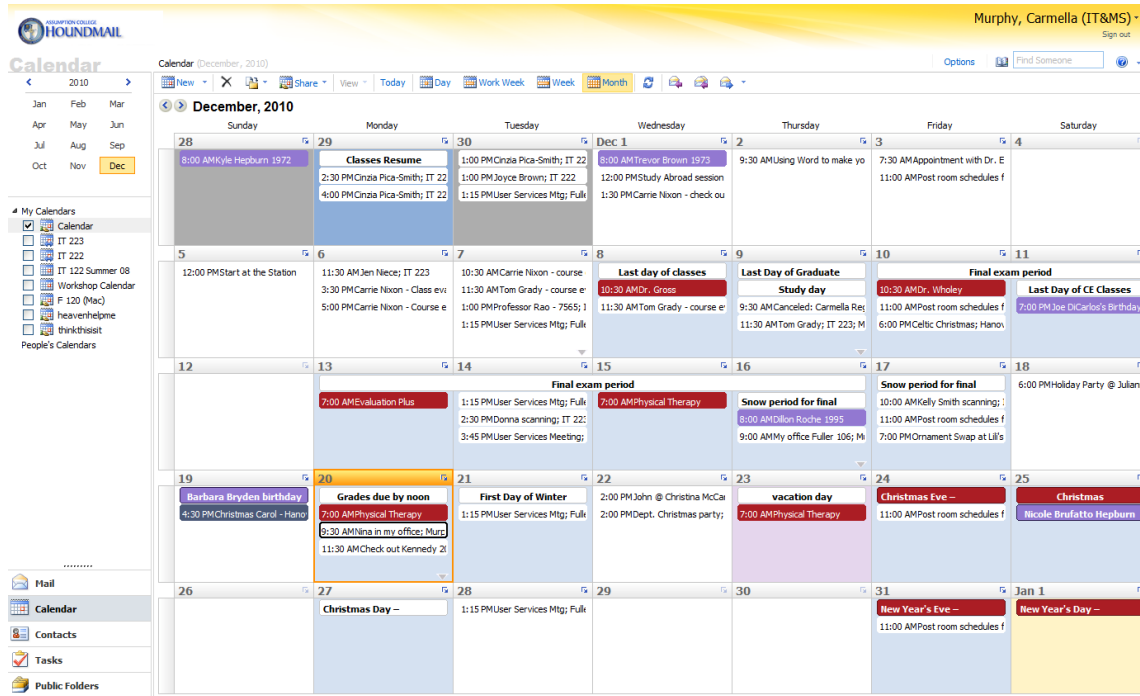

The first message shows both messages but the second one is not open. .

If you click on the arrow next to the message on the bottom right, it will open the second message.

The calendar view is very readable.

The Contact Window is also much more user friendly.
